

Museum of Natural History Weekly Buzzz... (July 17-23, 2010)

Celebrate Urban Birds at this weekend's Super Summer Saturdays event on July 24. We will plant a hummingbird garden here at the Museum from 9-10:30am before enjoying two shows by the Banana Slug String band at 10:30am and 12:00pm! Free for members or with museum admission.

For more information please visit our website:

<http://santacruz museums.org/whatsnew/events/supersummersaturday2010.htm>

The Water Beat with ZunZun made a huge splash at the Museum last Saturday! Audience members were invited to do the drought limbo, perform water dances, and help play instruments from around the world. It was an entertaining and educational show for everyone. Thank you ZunZun!

Nature Skills & Survival Camp This week a group of nature-loving kids learned how to pitch a tent, start a fire with sticks, and other survival skills during this popular camp. At the end of the week they got to put their new skills to use during a sleepover at Pie Ranch in Pescadero!

Green Business Certification update This week we had some of the Museum's plumbing updated, which was the last change required by the City of Santa Cruz in order to obtain our "green" certification through the Monterey Bay Area Green Business Program. The certification process should be completed soon! For more information about the program:

<http://www.montereybaygreenbusiness.org/AboutUsSC.html>

